To whom it may concern,

I am happy to recommend Jordan Brunsh for any opportunity that he is interested in. He was one of my first hires for the 2015 Season and, although I wish I could have utilized his skills for a longer term, he was one of my most reliable crew members and helped carry the Canadian Princess Fishing Lodge and Marine Adventures through a very busy, challenging, but successful season.

Jordan's poise, professionalism and good humor were evident from the outset as he patiently sat through a Skype interview that cut out intermittently, lost volume, and dropped a number of times. Once hired, he truly embraced two tough, physically demanding jobs at the Canadian Princess. As a Dock Hand, he patiently slugged away at the weeding and landscaping in the toughest of weather while the season slowly got started. The job also involved a significant amount of organization and administrative work with the coordination of both flight and fishing manifests. His work in this regard was always exemplary. He waited patiently for his opportunity to get on the boats as a Deck Hand. When his opportunity arose, he battled motion sickness, took a hook in the face, endured early mornings after sleepless nights in staff accommodation – all while keeping a positive outlook and a smile on his (stitched-up) face! The skillset that he generated over the summer augmented an already strong work ethic, sense of responsibility, and mature but adventurous spirit. He was a true leader amongst his peers, gave credit to his colleagues when it was due, and his value to the overall operation was remarkable.

I would strongly recommend investing any time and energy required to add Jordan to your team – whether it be for an academic endeavor, summer job or career position.

Please do not hesitate to contact me directly should you wish to discuss Jordan's tenure at the Canadian Princess or his character in general.

Yours truly,

Matthew Brear
